

KOMA – Game world

Europe, the 1930's. The world still remembers the horrors of War, but behind the facade of the roaring decade, great forces are at work.

Secret Societies are in continuous struggle to gain power. French witches dance on moonlit fields, performing age-old rituals for gaining the powers of the Moon. English gentleman-magicians meet in secret clubs to exchange information about the worlds of the demons, while Turkish alchemists are sweating in their laboratories mixing potions to find the fabled Philosopher's Stone.

The world is slowly steering towards another great war, but can it be avoided? Which side will gain the most power and will they use it for good or evil?

Compose your unique army from different units and spells and take part in the struggle!

The English summoners

The unnatural is natural for the English summoners. They twist the very laws of nature to their own advantage - and the annihilation of their enemies.

SIR ALISTAIR BERKELEY

YOUR UNITS DEAL AND RECEIVE +1 DAMAGE IN COMBAT.

KOMA – Visual

- Mostly dark colors
- All groups can have distinct styles for card images (for example watercolor painting, digi-painting, comic-like, woodcut etc)
- Different groups' cards also have different frames
- Frames also show if a card is a hero or a regular card
- A defined era helps with clothing design

KOMA – Game design

- Distinctly different groups with different playing styles support the mechanics
- Belonging to a group makes the player more committed
- Groups can be ranked, encouraging players to stay updated and work towards a shared goal
- The game is happening in a state of continuous struggle, that cannot end, because the game has no end. Groups fighting for power works well as a setting, supporting the setup.
