

Templates - instructions -

Six templates have been prepared to support the implementation and application of the Participatory Research Partnership model. The numbering of the templates reflects the recommended order of use, with the exception of the sixth template, which can be used throughout the participatory research partnership. The templates can be used alone or in parallel, meaning that following the numerical order is not mandatory.

The first template helps the team members get attuned to the research partnership by getting to know each other and describing the research team. The second template helps identify the individual agency of research partners and build co-agency in the research team. The third template helps define common practices in the research partnership. The research partners can use the fourth template to agree on tasks and responsibilities. The fifth template promotes reciprocal planning of the research. The sixth template is a tool for performing a developmental evaluation of the research partnership.

Template 4

Agreeing on tasks in the research partnership

The research partners define and jointly agree on the research tasks and related responsibilities to carry out research activities.

The template has two parts. You can use just one part, if needed.

- A. The first part (A) includes a description of partner-specific tasks agreed on. Things related to e.g. the distribution of tasks, schedules, or the meaningful performance of tasks can be jotted down as needed. In participatory research partnership, members of the research team can work in pairs or small groups, for instance.
- B. The second part (B) includes a description of the common tasks of the research team that all team members share.

The results obtained from template 3 may be useful when completing this template.

The results obtained from this template (4) may be useful when planning the research in template 5.
