Kumarsingh Nadan
Ismat Ishmuradov
The objective of this thesis is to contribute to the creation and further developing of Southern Finland’s image as wedding destination. The main aim is to achieve it by creating a destination wedding handbook for Southern Finland while studying its potential of usage for foreign wedding couples who wish to celebrate their wedding in Southern Finland.

The background of the thesis topic originates from both authors’ personal experience in organising wedding events in Finland, Mauritius and Uzbekistan.

Based on qualitative research methods, primary data was generated from unstructured interviews and by participants’ observation.

The theoretical framework of this study provides background information on tourism product development for wedding events.

The thesis continues with considerations of the managerial, financial and practical aspects.

The final product itself contains the introductory information about Finland and also mention about the convincing reasons for a potential wedding couple to opt for Southern Finland as a wedding destination.

The handbook will guide the reader stepwise on the different phases of wedding planning. It will cover the managerial aspects to give an idea on the research & design, legal issues and implementation of wedding event. Financial aspects provide sample of wedding event’s budget plan and give an estimation of costs involved. The last past of the handbook gives information on practical aspects and provides information on wedding venues, catering companies etc.

1 Introduction

Different countries across the entire planet symbolise the celebration of marriage with a nuptial knot ceremony usually referred to as a wedding (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007). During the past decades, the wedding’s culture, needs and decisions making have been influenced with major consequences because of globalisation, technology, the media, law and economic development. According to Liisa Rohleder, Events/Sales Manager of Restaurant Sunn, a wedding celebration plan can vary from a minimum time of one month to a maximum time of twelve months (Rohleder, 2017).

The background of the thesis topic originates from both authors’ personal experience in organizing wedding events in Finland. They believe that Finland has a great potential to become a wedding destination for international customers. While considering the location, seasons and the natural beauty aspects of Finland, the authors got the idea that Finland could and should use its advantages to become a wedding destination for international markets.

However, a basic online research by the authors proved that we do not have a reliable source of information package for a potential foreign wedding couple who are planning for their wedding in Finland. The Finnish National Portal websites provides basic information about wedding registrations and office matters but there is a lack of practical aspects to be considered for a wedding plan and organisation (Helsinki, 2014). Therefore, a real need of a handbook arises which will provide an excellent base of information for foreign wedding couples. If there will be a rise in wedding and travel businesses because of a reliable handbook, it will also contribute to the Finnish hotel, tourism and hospitality industry.

There are two authors of this thesis- Kumarsingh Nadan and Ismat Ishmuradov. Both of the authors started their studies in Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism Management Degree Programme in Haaga-Helia in 2010 fall. The authors have first-hand experience in wedding planning and therefore have chosen this topic as their thesis work. The authors believe that they will produce a better result and develop better product by working together on this research.
1.1 The aims and objectives

The objective of this thesis is to contribute to the creation and further developing of Southern Finland’s image as a wedding destination for foreign couples. The authors aim to achieve it by creating a destination wedding Southern Finland handbook by studying the current and future situation of destination weddings in Finland and the potential of Finland as a wedding destination. It can be useful for couples who are planning their weddings in Finland and other potential wedding couples who would become interested after reading the handbook. The motivational factors of foreign couples to choose Finland as their wedding destination will play a key role in our research. We will also study the possible marketing strategies used to attract foreign tourists to get married in Finland. Once the handbook is ready, it can be linked to the official travel guide of Finland.

1.2 Methodology

The methodology used in this study to gather data is qualitative based. Primary data was generated from unstructured interviews and participant observation. Unstructured interviews were carried out with Banquet & Event Managers of Restaurant Sunn and with the authors’ parents about their wedding events. The author participated in a few wedding plans processes to observe and note down the key points required during a wedding’s event deal between the wedding couple and the service provider, in the weddings organised by Restaurant Sunn. Furthermore, secondary data was analysed from online materials and books.

2 Theoretical Framework

The theoretical framework is the formation that supports and holds together the theoretical part of a research work. The framework describes and introduces the theory that suggests the research problem under study exists (University of Southern California, 2017).

A theoretical framework includes different background studies, concepts and their definitions, and references to their sources, the existing theories for the research being done. Theoretical framework strengthens and supports the research work (University of Southern California, 2017).

The theoretical framework in this research work provides an insight about the background information of developing a tourism product through a handbook for wedding destination as Southern Finland. The different topics such as tourism product development, Finland as a destination and three different aspects of wedding event planning support the authors’ research by analysing the potentiality of Southern Finland as a wedding destination. Moreover, the research will require the authors to consider the managerial, financial and practical aspects of wedding event’s planning and organisation.

2.1 Tourism product development

A product is defined as something that is sold by an entity to its consumers. Product development is the set of activities starting with the perception of a market opportunity and ending in the production, sale, and delivery of any product (Ulrich & Eppinger, 2012). The product planning takes place before substantial resources are applied to a project. It considers the range of projects that an entity might pursue (Trott, 2012). This concept identifies the portfolio of products to be developed by the organization. The planning process considers product development opportunities from many sources, including marketing, research and development, customers, current product teams and competitor analysis (Trott, 2012)

Product development is an essential process in tourism industry as well. It improves the efficiency of tourism industries by increasing the number of products and services offered. New products also raise the number of visitors, duration of stay and amount of money spent by each tourist.

Though all tourism destinations do marketing and promotion, a much lower percentage put enough effort on the development and delivery of the different attractions and happenings that create the tourism product. Unless the tourism product meets the needs and expectations of visitors, the tourism destination cannot show its full potential. Tourism products are the basis for a destination’s tourism sector operation. Critically, the marketing of a tourism destination starts with product research. Unless the product offer is indigenous and appropriate for the region or country, while also meeting ever changing customer needs, marketing alone will not achieve the destination’s potential (Robert Cleverdon & Nulty, 2011).

Tourism products satisfy the tourist needs and are the objects of the transactions between tourists and businesses (Koutoulas, 2015). Even though, tourism itself is a single industry, it is consisting of different industries such as restaurant industry, hotel industry, different airlines, travel companies, events etc. Each one of them delivers separate product or they combine to deliver tourist experience. Visiting a travel destination includes a mix of several mechanisms of different establishments. A traveller might buy all the travel services or products from a commercial provider, for instance, travel agency as a separate product or might buy tourist products separately from different suppliers. Tourism product is the final experience of the visitors. It can comprise every individual or place a tourist meet throughout their stay. Tourism product is a group of products and services put together to serve the consumer's needs and expectations. Therefore, tourism product is more of an experience rather than a good. It can be something that can be offered for consumption and satisfaction. It can contain physical objects, organizations, services, places and ideas. When tourists buy products, they do it for expectation of benefits. That’s why, tourism product is a mixture of what a tourist does or experience during a visit.

A wedding event can be a type of tourism product or just a product on its own. Comparing to all the other events in human life, a wedding maybe the most important and memorable one. Wedding products are produced and consumed at the same time, therefore, they cannot be evaluated in advance. The wedding experience has to be planned according to the wishes of the bride and the groom (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007). Wedding products are also monumental in many measures – the dreams extended, the financial funds required, the planning phase and most importantly the role and symbol of wedding event in one’s life. Wedding experience begins in childhood, when weddings occur as the most fanciful and magical event (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007).

2.2 Wedding Destinations

As Lonely Planet also points out, destination weddings have become a major trend. While some might think a wedding abroad will be very costly and challenging, it will be something unique and the guests will always remember it (Matchar, 2012). By having the wedding abroad, the wedding party itself tends to be more than one day and many of the wedding couples prefer having a holiday/honeymoon after the wedding and ceremonial parts (Wingrove, 2017). Traditionally wedding couples dream about luxurious destinations with spectacular views as their wedding destinations. The Knot magazine lists few amazing locations as a preference on their webpage such as St. Lucia, Bali, Lake Placid, and different locations in California, Italy and France as examples (Koch, 2017). According to Islands online magazine, the top wedding destinations in 2017 are Cayman Islands, St Lucia and Tahiti (Showell, Romantic getaways, 2016). Once the happy couple has made the decision to get hitched abroad, it is time to decide the perfect location. Choosing the location must be taken in consideration many aspects, such as travel, time and budget for example. In some countries visas and paperwork need to be addressed specifically. A trip to the wedding venue is highly recommended before-hand, but if the location is in a luxury location, it might not be possible and you might have to give the full trust to a local wedding planner. Timing of a wedding is just as well crucial; high tourist season might raise the prices of the services and accommodation in a large scale and put a huge price tag for the wedding. Always when planning a wedding abroad it must be understood if a close friend or relative cannot attend the wedding because of the financial or other matters due to the distance. That is only one more thing adding to the list why the planning for a wedding abroad must be started early (Knot, 2017).
2.2.1 Finland as a destination

Finland has a great potential to become a wedding destination. Though small in size, here are a lot of things that Finland can offer. Finland has one the cleanest air in the world (World Health Organization, 2016) and the landscapes are one of the most beautiful. This country has thousands of forests and lakes – and it needs to utilize them by improving its image as a wedding destination. According to Lonely Planet, Finland is one of the top 3 travel destinations in 2017 (Lonely Planet, 2017). Having four seasons, Finland has amazing contrast, darkness in winter and bright nights in summer, busy cities and calm countryside. Finland will celebrate its 100 years anniversary in 2017 with theme called ‘together’ (Prime Minister’s Office, 2017). The year is filled with different events and there is always something interesting going on. Now, Finland has thirty-nine national parks around the country, and this year it will increase to one more. This country has interesting natural characteristics such as valleys, lakes, archipelago, forests, swamps etc.

Aurora Borealis, is another experience which Finland offers to the world and it is well advertised. These once in a lifetime attractions for many foreign guests are visible approximately 200 nights a year in Northern Finland, meaning that almost every other night with a clear sky. In the recent years, Finland started to develop more diverse tourism products in its north to attract more tourists. Unique accommodations which give the opportunity to view the northern lights and the other nature were created, such as the TreeHouse Hotel in Rovaniemi, nest-like aurora domes in Mounio and Kemi’s Glass Villas (Regional Council of Lapland, 2017).

The world-famous Santa Claus resides in Lapland. The Christmas season brings thousands of tourists from all over the world to Finnish Lapland. Even though, Santa’s office is open year-round, lack of marketing does not give the Santa’s popularity to utilize its’ full potential to get high number of visitors throughout the year, not just Christmas season. However, Christmas Village is still the most popular destination in Finnish Lapland (Santa Claus Village, 2017).
Finland is a good destination for winter sports enthusiasts and everyone else who enjoys winter activities. Hiking in the national parks, snowboarding in the hills, sliding in husky pulled sleds, riding reindeers and downhill skiing are some of the many activities Finland has to offer in winter time. Lapland has been a popular destination within Finland for winter sports.

Finland also hosts different competitions and championships in sports. This year Lahti hosted skiing World Championships and that showcases Finland’s ability to host big events and showcased the beautiful nature this country can offer (Lahti, 2017).

Capital city area

Capital region consists of Helsinki, Espoo, Vantaa and Kauniainen and has a population of over 1.1 million. The capital city area is the largest industrialized area in the country. It is also the most important financial, scientific, tourism and cultural region of Finland. Finland’s main airport Helsinki-Vantaa, most of the governmental institutions, headquarters of the biggest companies and seven out of seventeen universities are located in capital region. Just a 15 minute boat trip from the mainland Helsinki, Suomenlinna – ‘the fortress of Finland’ includes a cluster of four islands which are connected by bridges. It’s a UNESCO World Heritage Site and was built in the mid-eighteenth century by Swedes (Symington & Parnell, 2012). Within the capital region, the authors consider that Suomenlinna plays an important role as a wedding destination. Therefore, the capital region is divided into two subcategories: Suomenlinna and the rest of the destinations in capital area.

Porvoo and Loviisa

These two towns in eastern Uusimaa are both famous for their beautiful summer landscape and summer events. Both are excellent locations for destination weddings:

Being the second oldest town of Finland, Porvoo is a popular destination for day trips from Helsinki. However, it is becoming a trend to stay there for the weekend. Though officially becoming a town in 1346, it was an important trading hub before that as well. Porvoo is best known for its beautiful red brick houses, which are located along the river and used to be warehouses for storing goods before they were sent to their destinations around Europe. These sites are expected to become Unesco World Heritage Site and even the new buildings around this area are painted in the matching colors.

Porvoo city has three distinctive areas: the new town, old town and Empire quarter which was established by Russian Tsar Nicholas 1. Old town is the most popular tourist destination within Porvoo, thanks to tightly clustered wooden houses and riverside setting (Symington & Parnell, 2012).

Loviisa is a small town by the Baltic Sea. It is located 90 km from Helsinki and it is on the way to St. Petersburg. Loviisa has been declared as a wedding town in 2013 (Kehrs, 2013). Ute Kehrs, a Haaga Helia graduate did her Bachelor’s thesis on wedding themes in Loviisa. According to Ute, it was not a long planned marketing decision to announce Loviisa as a wedding town. In fact, it was more like a citizens' initiative. Some locals sent the city of Loviisa a request regarding Loviisa becoming a wedding town. The idea was accepted and went forward since it suited the marketing plans and image of Loviisa (Kehrs, 2013).

“Loviisa - Small town, great experiences. Whether you wanted to get married at sea or on dry land, Loviisa is the town of weddings, offering perfect scenes for unforgettable ceremonies. The most beautiful wedding churches of Southern Finland are located in Loviisa, not to mention the their venues in the city. That is why Loviisa has been named to "the Wedding Town"” (City of Loviisa, 2017).

2.2.2 Potential Handbook Users

At this stage, based on secondary data from active websites, the authors have identified that the only way to organise a wedding from abroad, in Finland, is possible by contacting wedding service providers by email and consulting the hotels/venues & wedding websites (Eloperite, 2011). The final product as a handbook, will be a reliable source of information to be provided to the potential wedding couples about a series of unique advantages. The product’s benefits will add value to the customer’s needs as it will show how to research about wedding planning in line with managerial, financial and practical aspects.

The handbook must reflect value in the perception of the user and therefore the authors will consider ‘what’ brings value to the wedding couples, ‘what’ will be beneficial to them and ‘what’ will a better product in the form of the handbook: Southern Finland as a wedding destination.
Destination Tourism

The destination marriage happens when a wedding pair plans to celebrate their wedding in a country where neither one of them lives. Usually, wedding couples opt for a famous tourism location to be used as the wedding spot, the honeymoon and for tourism activities (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, s. 94). In the recent years of Finnish tourism history, Foreign travellers’ proportion of total tourism yearly consumption was about 29 per cent which accounts to about 3 billion of euros per year (Tyrkö, 2009).

There is considerable amount of purchases for both restaurant/catering and accommodation services which represent about 1.6 billion Euros for each sector. Based on the current data where it shows the potential foreign markets exists already, we believe that a handbook for potential wedding consumers will encourage more wedding travellers to Finland and hence increase the economic generation for the recreational and cultural tourism sectors.

2.2.3 Strengths and weaknesses of Finland as a destination

The strengths and weaknesses can be identified by considering part of the SWOT analysis which is the systematic investigation of the country’s strengths, weaknesses, opportunities and threats and their impact of their strategic implications (Mooradian; Matzler, & Ring, 2012). Finland celebrates the 100th anniversary of its independence this year (2017) from Russia. Despite the long history of wars and instability between the two countries, nowadays they both share good relations in educational, business and travelling activities (Utti, 2007). Primarily, the strengths which the country possessed already will eventually be the various motivating factors for a potential couple to travel to the country for tourism purposes. Knowing the facts that Finland provides a series of advantages in different sectors, can encourage future wedding partners to consider Finland as an excellent wedding destination.

According to the world happiest report 2017, Finland was ranked the 5th happiest country on the planet (Gilchrist, 2017). Recently the country was also mentioned in the world famous magazine VOGUE where the author has gathered information from local architect, businessman and bloggers about where to eat, where to sauna and where to wander (Burshtein, 2017). Consequently, that precious information can be exposed to possible international market segments that are planning to organise weddings in a suitable foreign country.

As far as the Finland 2016 Crime & Safety Report is concerned, the Overseas Security Advisory Council (OSAC) of USA reveals that Finland is classified as stable country with a perfect police force to maintain public security and grows a sound political and economic environment. Moreover, Finland provides a safe and healthy environment for sustaining a healthy life, business, travel and tourism (OSAC, 2016).
As far as weaknesses are concerned, the authors think must think about the aspects which act as factors to demotivate a potential wedding couple to come to Finland. People coming from countries which are not part of the European Union must make the effort of applying visiting visas or short term permits which cost time and money. Prior to the author’s wedding in Finland during the year 2015, his parents from Uzbekistan had to apply for a tourist visa which took about 2-3 months to process from the German Embassy of Uzbekistan. As Finnish Embassies are not present in many countries, it makes the processing time of visiting permits even longer (Ministry, 2017). While travelling from non-EU countries to Finland, the challenges of currency conversion occur which affect the buyer’s power specially during fluctuation rates of euros (Geogheghan, 2014).

Finland has 4 amazing seasons during which it can receive weddings celebrations all year round depending on the choice of the wedding couple. The country is reputed for long lasting cold winters, cold springs & autumns and just a few weeks of warm summer days (Climate, 2017). The different variety of seasons might affect the decision makers while choosing a wedding destination. Southern Finland which is usually the warmest part of Finland might have a limited amount of options for venue choices during the short peak summer season.

2.3 Managerial aspects

Based on the author’s personal professional field, during events management at Restaurant Sunn, it reveals that a successful wedding project revolves around the different management functions. It represents a series of main essential tasks as planning, organising, staffing, directing and controlling (Koontz & O'Donnell, 1972). As far as the handbook for a wedding is concerned, the managerial aspects consist of seven phases of wedding timelines as research, design, coordination, legal issues, confirmation and implementation and wrap-up/evaluation. (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, pp. 103-124).

2.3.1 Research and Design

Initially, the wedding couple will have to visualise the size of the wedding which will impact other main related factors like finance, location of the wedding ceremony and reception. Apart from the bride and bridegroom as the main stakeholders, a series of stakeholders need to be considered during the research stage.

While doing the research during the wedding planning process, the wedding couple can go through all the vendors and list out the priorities according to their wedding budget.

The wedding design is based on a theme and vision for the wedding. A wedding vision reflects a summary for the main objectives of the wedding event which covers the five senses: sight, sound, smell, taste and touch (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 139).

After knowing the couple’s vision, wedding themes that will suit the choice of wedding destination and location might be suggested. The colour themes can also vary according to different seasons of the wedding destination, e.g., Finnish winters will go very well with dark shades and light colours for Finnish bright dry summers. Wedding themes can also be imagined based on popular calendar holidays like Valentine’s Day or Easter, festive weekends, historical connection or popular culture (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 142). During the design phase, the couple will also like to establish a dress code that will correspond for their wedding theme and vision.
2.3.2 Coordination

During the organising of a wedding, the coordination stage plays a major role in the process as it allows the couple and the selected vendors to start binding all the deals and agreements. At this particular stage, the couple can start documenting an official file for the wedding project which will consist of all the different detailed plans to be executed for the wedding (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 109). The official draft can also include a checklist to follow at all time when required. For the sake of other stakeholders like transportation, decor, logistics companies and guests, it will be wise to attach a floor plan of the wedding venue.

2.3.3 Legal issues

The legal aspects are more relevant when the wedding is to be organised in a foreign country. Different host countries of the wedding events demand different criteria from the wedding couples by the immigration authorities. Usually the embassy of the concerned country assists the foreign couple to make sure that the important requirements are met (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 109). However, the process can be less bulky if the couple would have already done the civil wedding in their home country. Contrarily, in Finland, e.g. the couple must spare a minimum of 7 days upon arrival in Finland prior to wedding date (7 days or less to file the paperwork and obtain a Certificate of the Examination of Impediments to Marriage) as the authority recommends to give more time due to preparation, weekends, holidays or unexpected delays (Eloperite, 2011).

2.3.4 Confirmation

At this stage, the wedding couple will be able to finalise all the preceding steps during the wedding planning process. It also involves a final confirmation with each selected vendors hired to make the wedding event happen (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 110). The final confirmation with different vendors can still have a last minute opportunity to make minor changes like 1-2 guest’s seats (no shows), music list for DJ, speech time period and food diets. After the confirmations, an official draft of the entire wedding schedule can be finalised to be used as a constant guide.
2.3.5 Implementation

The detailed and reliable schedule for the wedding event’s execution will facilitate the implementation of the wedding to go fluently. This production schedule will act as a portfolio that provides a detailed format of relevant tasks to be considered during the implementation of the wedding (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 111). For events such as weddings, the detailed plan usually contains information for the pre-wedding, day of wedding and post wedding. The schedule can offer information about the details of the wedding vendors, different times schedules of each steps and specific tasks to be carried out by who, when and how.

2.3.6 Wrap-up and evaluation

After having organised a wedding event, it is always wise to gather comments and suggestions from the hired vendors and guests. That precious data can be recorded and stored for future needs or financial accounts (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 111). If the couple will plan to have wedding anniversaries or other parties, the grand wedding event’s wrap-up and evaluation report can useful as a reference while planning vendors selection and budget.
2.4 Financial Aspects

This subchapter deals with the cost of a wedding event. According to the Forbes magazine, it depends on three main factors: where the wedding takes place, the number of the guests, and the type of food being offered (Sun, 2016).

In these modern times, considerable changes have taken place as far as wedding finance is concerned. Based on the author’s experience, it concluded that the total budget spent turned out to be way higher than originally planned. Moreover, it showed that due to educational and career expansion of potential future wedding couples, we tend to delay our wedding stages (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, p. 125).

Currently, the authors’ parents who are in their late 60s, revealed that back in the days, people were ready to tie the knot mostly below the age of 25 years old. Nowadays, it is more often that the couples are more likely to pay for the entire wedding costs rather than relying on parents. However, for the sake of the handbook’s objectives, we will provide basic information about financial aspects to be considered for any couple who are planning for their wedding to be organised in Southern Finland, regardless of age, education level or nationality.

Though there can be dozens of different type or themes of wedding events, we will categorize the wedding budget into to three different categories to look at in more simple way: simple/budget ceremony, traditional wedding event and lavish wedding (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007).

Simple/budget Ceremony

Some couples might want to have a simple wedding ceremony, more personal and unconventional. This type of wedding ceremony naturally requires less financial resources considering the number of the guests, the catering expenses and size of the wedding venue. Simple ceremonies sometimes might even have their own food instead of hiring a catering company, therefore, requiring even lower budget (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007).

Traditional wedding

This type of wedding requires professional catering service, much larger wedding venue comparing to simple ceremonies, well planned seating order, and transportation from hotels to wedding venue etc. Alcoholic beverages are also to be taken into consideration while planning a traditional wedding, since the prices for alcohol are relatively higher in Finland than in most countries (Global Alcohol Prices, 2015).

Lavish wedding

Some couples might want to organize a lavish wedding event in Finland. This type of wedding requires much larger budget comparing to traditional or simple ceremonies (Wedding Report Inc, 2017). Lavish weddings are common in Middle East, India and rich western families. In such cases, the wedding couples are recommended to hire professional wedding organizers since there are a lot of things that must be done. The wedding couple might end up too stressed if they try to organize the event by themselves. The budget for a lavish wedding must be carefully planned well in advance, since there can be many hidden costs that come up while organizing an event for such a large number of guests (Torgerson, 2017). In order to get an estimated average cost of a wedding in Finland, the authors will break down the most common costs for a wedding event.

2.5  Practical Aspects

Planning a wedding is not a simple thing to arrange, it is an event you should arrange only one time in your life. Let alone, when you are organizing it in another country, you might need some more assistance with the practical issues especially. The visas are one thing you need to pay attention to and start planning the wedding well in advance. If there are people attending your wedding with several different nationalities, it is something you have to be prepared and spread knowledge about to the guests.

Two principles considering the planning of the wedding are in order: 1) it is never too early to plan and 2) Never make decisions without considering the alternatives (Spencer, 2012). Planning the wedding is something you need to make time for and biggest outlines like a budget and date should be agreed and set early so it will be easier to put more pieces in the puzzle and organize. In general, the overlook of the wedding has changed: we tend to get married at a later age in the modern times. Deciding on where the ceremony and/or the reception will be, you will be deciding the theme of the wedding. Whether or not the couple has similar/different religious views, it is something to take in consideration and plan properly before the big day. The ceremony can be held in a religious facility or in the place of the reception but it needs to be discussed beforehand that whoever is conducting the ceremony, is willing to perform the ceremony in this specific place (Doell, 2008).

2.5.1 Wedding venues

Wedding venues or sites can be opted according to the type of weddings which can be defined by a special theme or the size of the wedding. In many cases, the religious or traditional marriage ceremony takes place in churches, temples or pagodas and then the newly wedded couple and guests will throw the wedding party in a different location for the grand celebration. However, it also exists in different locations where the venue can cater for both the nuptial ceremony and the wedding celebration. Nowadays many wedding venues consist of aquariums, atriums, banquet rooms, summer cottages, gardens, historic estates mansions, hotels, museums and hotels resorts. While choosing a wedding venue, special considerations must be taken into account to address the following aspects (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, s. 144):

- capacity – According to the author who was organising his wedding on the western part of Mauritius island which consists a range of 5-star luxury hotel venues to 3-star deluxe hotel venues, the size of the wedding plays a major role during the selection of the venue. After confirming the number of guests (150) who would have attended the wedding, the Manisa Hotel, Mauritius, which lies few meters way from the beach was hired for both the religious ceremony and the wedding reception. As the wedding reception was planned to be organised in open air, the only challenge was the weather as rain water would have ruined the entire outdoor evening banquet. However, the hotel’s events manager had organised his own backup plan which was an indoor banquet room, with same outdoor beach theme celebrations and décor (Manisa, 2016).

- rental costs or cost per guest – The rental costs are not always applied to all the wedding venues. It all depends on the type of wedding locations. As the author described his wedding at the Manisa Hotel, the main costs incurred were the hotel accommodation rooms and food & beverages. But the hotel yard property was available for free to erect a rented tent for the religious wedding and the pool side outdoor lounge was offered for free as well for the reception. However the other author reveals that for his wedding at Karhusaari ART Centre, Espoo, he had to cover a cost of 800 euros rental fees for 12 hours, apart from the wedding food & beverage and entertainment costs (VisitEspoo, 2015).

- restrictions and special requirements – Some venues like Manisa hotel of Mauritius forces you to buy their own food and beverages but while organising a wedding in the venue of the Karhussari Art Centres of Espoo, you will likely have to organise your own catering. Moreover, the wedding venue’s owner can provide strict regulations to follow, like smoking prohibitions or sound/noise limit within the time allowed (Manisa, 2016).

- set up time – The final day set up time becomes very critical for the venue’s staff as all the plans made on paper or verbal ones will be put into practice to satisfy different demands of the buyers like proper seating plan, types of food & beverage service, dietary requirements, light and entertainment logistics (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007, s. 148).

2.5.2 Catering and Cake

Catering is one of the most crucial parts in a wedding planning. There are many details that the wedding guests will forget days or weeks after the reception, such as what color flowers were in the bouquet or whether the bride’s French manicure was chipped. What they will not forget easily is a great meal. They also will not forget a not-so-great meal. For both these reasons, it makes sense to concentrate plenty of planning energy on the food, drink, service and atmosphere of a wedding reception (Doell, 2008).

There are several different kinds of catering services available, for example companies focused only on events and then restaurants that can offer catering services. It is important to discuss the menu thoroughly with the catering service, what the wedding couple wants and what would be the kind of food the guests would like. In Finland of course the time of the year impacts on the availability of the food and it is nice to have for example lighter options during summer. It depends on the occasion, whether the wedding couple wants the food in a buffet or table service (Daniels, Wedding Planning and Management, 2007).

A modern wedding cake can be as beautiful and imaginary as the wedding couple wants it to be and it can be covered in fondant or butter-cream icing with lace, flowers etc. The cake serves both the part of decoration, which is why it should be centered in the middle of the reception, but it is naturally a dessert too. The cake is associated with a traditional part of the wedding as well, cutting the cake bring the groom and bride together to join hands and cut their first piece of dessert as husband and wife. Some couples save the top of the cake for themselves, freeze it and have it on their first wedding anniversary. As many other wedding traditions, in ancient Greek was started the tradition of serving a slice of confection. Those times however it was not cake, but a slice of bread. The bread used to be broken on top of their heads to ensure fertility and prosperity. Guests would then head out for the bread crumbs from the floor to share the good luck being wished for the wedding couple (Doell, 2008). Wedding cake and the moment of cutting the cake is a traditional part of the weddings in Finland as well. The type of the cake can vary a lot: someone likes it big, someone likes to have it small and simple. Especially nowadays special diets are one thing to think about: vegan cakes can also be offered in a wedding.

2.5.3 Wedding Flowers

It is being said that flowers set the stage at a wedding. They can be used as background arrangements, traditional bride’s bouquet and groom’s flower attached in the suit, the wedding couple’s parents wearing a piece of flowers in the outfits, used as a way of remembering other important people in the couple’s lives and used as beautiful centerpieces in the tables at the reception. The trend these days is for the flower bouquet of the bride to be small and tailored with bright colors and at the same time matching with the other flowers in the wedding venue. Recent trends towards more simple and compact bouquet are the most cost effective and still beautiful (Doell, 2008). But indeed there no rules to decide what kind of flowers the bride should have on the special day. A single flower can be just as beautiful as a big bouquet of flowers. It might be as a quality of the flowers that they fit with just about anything (Stewart, 1987). Often the bridesmaid’s flowers are smaller versions of the bride’s bouquet but it can be also suited with the bridesmaid’s dresses, however the bride decides it to be. Flowers have for a very long time played a part of weddings in several cultures. Already in ancient Greek and Rome, shafts of wheat and grain were thought to evoke fertility. Then again the color of white in flowers symbolizes innocence, as do pink as well (Doell, 2008). When considering weddings in Finland, there are obviously more options during summer and imported flowers have their high season during summer as well. A tradition is also linked to the bride’s bouquet in Finland; at the end of the wedding it can be thrown by the bride in to a crowd of unmarried women and whoever catches it, will have their wedding next. Especially during summer time brides also might have flowers as a part of their hairdo.
Product framework

In this sub-chapter, the authors create the product frame which links the theoretical framework with the final product – Handbook: Southern Finland as a wedding destination. Different aspects of the wedding planning discussed in the theoretical framework will be briefly assessed and final points will be decided, which will then appear on the product.

- Why Finland

The handbook will start with introducing Finland and giving brief facts about the country in general. However, most of the information will be concentrated on Southern Finland and its regions. After that, some special features of Finland as a wedding destination will be listed. The authors will take into consideration that the reader can be a potential wedding couple who already have decided to have their wedding event in Southern Finland or someone who would become interested to organize their wedding here after reading the handbook.

- Managerial aspects

The managerial aspects to be considered for a wedding plan in Southern Finland are mainly research & design, legal issues and implementation plan. Those three important stages of wedding plan will comprise of a combination of tasks to realize the wedding project effectively.

!Managerial aspects of wedding planning (Kumarsingh Nadan)
• Financial aspects
In financial aspects part of the handbook, the authors will give a sample wedding budget plan, and give an estimation of costs for each possible expense category. Also, the actual costs for certain venues and catering menus will be provided. As discussed in financial aspects sub-chapter, financial estimation for simple, traditional and lavish wedding events in different destinations of Southern Finland will also be created.

• Practical aspects
Practical aspects part of the handbook will make up most of the pages of the handbook. This part will especially be important for those couples who are generally looking at different wedding destination countries and have not yet decided to choose Finland as their option. However, also those who have already made up their mind and planning to organize their wedding event in Finland will find the necessary info regarding practical aspects in this part. The authors consider that wedding venues will be the first part that a potential reader will be looking at.

➢ Wedding venues
In the wedding venues section, we will write the list of wedding venues located in capital city area and Porvoo and Loviisa. We will provide brief but essential info such as the intro, capacity, location, price, catering possibilities, contact details and some pictures of the each wedding venue.

➢ Catering
Catering section will include necessary information that a potential wedding couple will need. The contact details and some sample menus with prices will be provided for each catering company. Catering suggestions will be made considering the location and characteristics of the wedding venues in each destination.

➢ Cake
Though many catering companies offer wedding cakes as well, we are going to list the suggestions for the wedding cake providers separately. The possible pictures and prices from different wedding cakes and the contact details of several bakeries and wedding cake makers will be listed

➢ Flowers
Flowers are one of the most crucial elements of any wedding. Choosing the right flowers can make the wedding event very memorable. The handbook will include different selections for wedding flowers and the flower shops that will provide them. The location of the venues will also be taken into consideration while listing the flower shops.

➤ Other wedding event vendors

Besides, the wedding venue, catering, flowers etc, one might need the services of other possible wedding event vendors as well. This section will include the list of other possible vendors and type of service they provide.

3 The planning and implementation of the project

This chapter will explain from start to finish about how we finalize the title of the thesis and how the sub chapters were formed during the planning process. The planning process involves all the relevant topics which can be of constructive concern to the area of the thesis topic. The process consists of the main subjects which together act as a backbone of the overall thesis structure. A chart will show how the tasks and plans were implemented. Furthermore the limitations and risks of the final product will be discussed.

3.1 Background of the Project

Both of the authors decided to focus on the wedding topic as they have already experienced wedding planning in real life. One of the authors who comes from the island Mauritius being a holiday and wedding destination, has already gathered some experience in the field of events management while working in Mauritius. Moreover, last year, he has organised his own wedding in Mauritius. The wedding plan started about a year before the wedding date which involved budget plan, travel options (Helsinki-Mauritius-Helsinki), accommodations and wedding venues selection. As for the other author who also had wedding event management experience from Uzbekistan and Finland. He has actively participated in planning and executing a 600-people wedding event for his older brother and that was the first time when he realized how much time and effort it takes. Also, he organized his own wedding event in Finland in 2015 and the knowledge and experience gained from that helped the authors a lot while writing this thesis. While planning his own wedding, the author found out that there was a lack of sources to provide about wedding planning in Finland. To make things more complicated, there were minimum amount of information available in English concerning wedding organisation and planning. In fact one of the famous wedding magazines company (mennään naimisiin) was contacted to get some basic information about wedding planners but the person answering the phone totally refused to answer in English (Mennäännaimisiin, 2017). However the company managed to list out one name of a wedding planner which was ‘divine’ and was solely in Finnish language. Considering the fact that a common platform of information about wedding planning is absent in Finland, the authors decided to create a handbook for wedding planning in Southern Finland. The idea of the handbook will generate a final product which will target mainly foreign future wedding couples who are planning for their marriage in Southern Finland.
3.2 Project Plan

The project plan acted as a guide to follow in order to realise the aim and objectives of the project. Under the advice of the thesis supervisor, the authors actually made a temporary table of contents to follow as part of the project plan. As the authors practically started the thesis by late February, they were already in a very tight schedule. While both having a busy work schedule working on a shift system, they had a minimum time available per week to concentrate on the thesis. However the preliminary Gantt chart was very useful to plan all the future tasks and schedules. Eventually the authors made it a must to meet up two times per week to move on with the thesis at both Haaga and Pasila campuses. Therefore, they always set up a weekly time frame for a weekly target to complete. Every now and then, they had scheduled meetings with their supervisor to assist and give feedbacks on their progress.

The schedule initially started with a continuous proposal of possible topics to the thesis coordinator and finally the topic of wedding planning was accepted but on the condition that a concrete and convincing thesis outline about the topic will be produced. During the same period of producing the outline, the thesis supervisor Ms Salonen was allocated to guide the authors’ team.

The chart depicts the progress level from beginning to the early stage of the theoretical framework. It shows that authors spent longest days on topic proposals, finalizing topic and initiating the theoretical framework. As far as the supervisor’s meetings and feedbacks are concerned, 1-2 hours were spent for discussion and rest of the day was used to make necessary corrections at school in the Haaga Campus.

This part of the Gantt chart shows the progress level from the core topics of the theoretical framework to the last stage of thesis submission for final reviewing by the thesis supervisor. The entire thesis took about 3 months to complete and the main challenge was to find the right books to get the direct theories about wedding management. Knowing that those books were rare, few were successfully requested from Poorvoo campus to be picked up from Pasila campus and sometimes it took 3-4 days to reach. Most of the information for the theoretical framework of the thesis was found from the books, journals, research papers etc. related to the thesis topic. Authors also used information available online. The process of writing the handbook itself required a lot of detailed information search from hundreds of service providers and stakeholders of wedding events. The authors called and sent emails to many of the vendors in order to get the most up to date information on prices, contact details, types of services or products offered etc. Almost all the plans were implemented as required and the deadlines were met except in special cases where one of the authors was sick.

Thesis was presented in Haaga campus on 18th of May, 2017.
3.3 Limitations and Risks of the product

The targeted market segment for the handbook

The handbook is targeted towards international markets that can only research in English language. There might be possibility of potential markets segment that do not use English language at all and therefore will neither get access to our handbook nor enjoy the benefits it provides while planning for a wedding in Southern Finland. At this stage the authors have not carried out a research about wedding planning of a size above 200 guests to be organised in Southern Finland. While considering the legal issues, the updated requirements of Finnish immigration rules might alter from time to time and the information about permit required might not be valid as listed in the handbook at all time. Regarding the hassles about applying for visas and permits might be perceived as a burden to future foreign couples and guests and therefore not opting for Southern Finland as wedding destination, specially the people from the non-european countries.

The product explains the wedding budget's options while considering the current rate of foreign currency exchange in Finland, which might fluctuate in different countries on different days of budget calculations.

3.4 Learning Outcomes

The reason behind why the authors chose this topic was that both of the authors have personal and professional experience in wedding event planning. However, during the process of writing this thesis and creating the handbook, the authors learnt a lot of new things. The writing process of this thesis in a way worked as a summary of the studies in Haaga-Helia University of Applied Sciences. The authors had the chance to apply all their academic knowledge into this thesis. The background research, managerial aspects, financial aspects and practical aspects sections of the thesis gave the authors opportunity to use all the knowledge they gained during their studies. The authors also learnt how to write a professional academic paper, the use of sources and their appearance in the research work, the theoretical and practical sides of wedding event planning, improved their cooperation and team work skills and so on. All in all, writing this thesis helped the authors gain knowledge and skills and improve the ones they already had.

Handbook: Southern Finland as a Wedding Destination

Introduction
The authors of this handbook believe that Finland has a great potential to become a wedding destination. Considering the summer season and the urban infrastructure available, this handbook will be dedicated to the Southern Finland; capital area and Porvoo and Loviisa in particular. By writing the current handbook, the authors want to contribute to creating and further transforming Southern Finland’s image as a great place to have your wedding.

Managerial aspects of planning a wedding event in Southern Finland

The managerial aspect of the wedding plan in Southern Finland covers three main important stages as the research & design, legal issues and implementation plan.

Research & Design

What will a wedding couple need to research at the early stage?

It is very important to determine the size of the wedding to be organised as that number will affect all other sectors of concern for the planning process.

Table of initial research stage. (Kumarsingh Nadan)
During the research stage, it is wise to identify all the different stakeholders (vendors) required to accomplish the goal of the wedding project.

The above chart can reflect the vendors required for a full lavish wedding.

While having a list of the vendors, a list of priorities can be figured out to make a selection of the ones to be retained or discarded in order to maximise the wedding budget available. Based on a very tight budget, a couple can eliminate printing of invitation cards, entertainment or videography.
The design phase is about concentrating the type, theme and vision for the wedding. For example, if it is a type of a traditional Scottish wedding in Finland, a dress code can be designed to fit the wedding ambience.

Scottish Wedding couple at Karhussari Art Centre, Espoo.

Possible wedding themes can be inspired from seasons and holidays in Finland:

- New Year's Eve
- Valentine's Day
- St Patrick's Day
- Easter
- Memorial Day
- 1st of May
- Labour day
- Halloween
- Christmas

Other themes:
- Military weddings (Suomenlinna)- Old battle fortress.
- Historical Connections- Restaurant Sunn is part of one of the first stone building of Helsinki designed by architect Hansson Sunn in the 1700s.
- Outdoor natural themes- Outdoor parks, mansions’ yard, estates garden.

Research & Design considerations

(Kumarsingh Nadan)
Legal issues

The legal aspects are always essential to consider when the wedding is to be organised in a foreign country like Finland.

Keep in mind:

- Immigration rules differ in different countries
- Different rules for nationalities of the Non-European countries
- Consult the local embassy for visa requirements
- Advance civil wedding cases the wedding processes in Finland

- It takes 1-2 weeks to obtain a Certificate of Impediments to Marriage in Finland.
- Revise legal documents before finalising payment deals with vendors, hotels or wedding venues
- Wiser to inspect all contracts attentively in English before concluding agreements
- Penalty fees might occur due to event cancellations depending on time delays.

Implementation

For the implementation phase, it is important to have a detailed schedule plan for the series of wedding tasks execution. For the case of wedding in Finland, the schedule can include tasks about the pre-wedding, wedding day and post wedding.

Initially the wedding couple can record a sheet for the essential connections during the pre-wedding stage as in the following example:

<th>Suomenlinna Director</th>

• Practical aspects
  ➢ Wedding venues in capital city area

Capital city area consists of Helsinki, Espoo and Vantaa and has a population of around 1.1 million. The capital city area is the largest industrialized area in the country. It is also the most important financial, scientific, tourism and cultural region of Finland. Finland’s main airport Helsinki-Vantaa, most of the governmental institutions, headquarters of the biggest companies and seven out of seventeen universities are located in capital region. The capital region is divided into two subcategories: Suomenlinna and the rest of the destinations in capital area.

Suomenlinna:

Just a 15 minute boat trip from the mainland Helsinki, Suomenlinna – ‘the fortress of Finland’ includes a cluster of four islands which are connected by bridges. It’s a UNESCO World Heritage Site and was built in the mid-eighteenth century by Swedes (Symington & Parnell, 2012). Within the capital region, the authors consider that Suomenlinna plays an important role as a wedding destination.

The contact details and photos are taken from the web pages of the venues. The contact details of all the wedding venues in Suomenlinna are the same:

Suomenlinna Island, 00910 Helsinki

Though officially becoming a town in 1346, it was an important trading hub before that as well. These sites are expected to become Unesco World Heritage Site and even the new buildings around this area are painted in the matching colors.
